PREFACE

Names of places, like names of persons, are given primarily for convenience and accuracy in reference and identification. As the works of man spread more widely over the land, the need for greater standardization and wider common understanding of place names becomes more important. The Indiana Board on Geographic Names serves as an advisory body to State and Federal agencies and others who desire guidance in decisions involving controversial geographic names. The board was informally established in 1961 by joint action of the several cooperating agencies represented on the board. In 1963 Governor Matthew E. Welsh gave formal recognition to the Indiana Board on Geographic Names by issuing an executive order that established the board as the official body to determine appropriate and correct names for geographic features and places. The Indiana board cooperates with, and commonly follows the precepts of, the longer established U. S. Board on Geographic Names.

State organizations that make extensive use of maps have for some time been aware of numerous problems involving geographic names. Most directly concerned, perhaps, is the Indiana Flood Control and Water Resources Commission, which, by the nature of its broadly defined duties, works with even the smallest streams and watersheds in every corner of the State. Small geographic features generally have no accepted name; at best they are uncertainly or casually named. Because of this interest in geographic names, the Indiana Flood Control and Water Resources Commission has for some time served, informally, as geographic names consultant to the U. S. Geological Survey in the latter's program of topographic mapping in Indiana.

On February 20, 1961, Joseph I. Perrey, Chief Engineer, Indiana Flood Control and Water Resources Commission, sent a letter to several other organizations known to be interested in mapping and geographic names, inviting them to appoint a representative to help organize a board to deal with geographic names in Indiana. The organizational meeting was held in Indianapolis on April 7, 1961. Representatives of the several cooperating organizations were Denzil Doggett, Division of Water Resources, Indiana Department of Conservation; Caroline Dunn, Indiana Historical Society; Henry H. Gray, Geological Survey, Indiana Department of Conservation; Robert D. Miles, School of Civil Engineering, Purdue University; Joseph I. Perrey, Indiana Flood Control and Water Resources Commission; H. P. Ulrich, School of Agriculture, Purdue University; M. O. Wise, Indiana State Highway Commission. Joseph I. Perrey was elected chairman. The name, Indiana Board on Geographic Names, was chosen, and a guide for operation of the board was adopted on May 19, 1961. At regular meetings held, generally monthly, from this date through June 30, 1965, the board has acted upon 339 cases.

In this pamphlet and others to be issued periodically the decisions of the board, called "findings," are collected and issued for public information. These findings are reached after investigation of historical references and current usage, both written and spoken. This information is tempered with good cartographic practice, and an attempt is made to avoid unnecessary duplication and confusion. It is hoped that the findings of the board will be accepted as authoritative and will be helpful in settling local controversies regarding geographic names.

Anyone who wishes may apply to the board, directly or through any of the cooperating organizations, requesting a finding for establishing new geographic names or for determining proper usage of existing names in Indiana. As much pertinent information as possible, both current and historic, should be furnished with the request. The address of the board is: Indiana Board on Geographic Names, Room 606, State Office Building, Indianapolis, Indiana 46204.

EXECUTIVE ORDER No. 11-63

FOR: RECOGNITION OF THE INDIANA BOARD ON GEOGRAPHIC NAMES AS THE OFFICIAL BODY TO EXAMINE AND CONSIDER THE NAMES OF GEOGRAPHICAL FEATURES AND PLACES FOR PURPOSE OF DETERMINING THEIR MOST APPROPRIATE AND CORRECT NAMES.

TO ALL TO WHOM THESE PRESENTS MAY COME, GREETING:

WHEREAS, there has been a growing awareness of the confusion and problems caused by uncertainty regarding the proper, correct and official names for geographic features and places; and

WHEREAS, names of places are given primarily for convenience and accuracy in reference and identification; and

WHEREAS, the need for greater standardization and wider common understanding of place names becomes more important as the works of man spread more widely over the land; and

WHEREAS, there is need for official rulings which will represent the considered opinion of the State regarding the proper names of geographic features and places for use in official documents, standard maps and for use in general; and

WHEREAS, the United States Board on Geographic Names frequently requests information and assistance on local geographic names and desires the cooperation of an official board in the State of Indiana,

NOW, THEREFORE, by virtue of the authority vested in me as Governor of the State of Indiana by the Constitution and laws of the State of Indiana, I do hereby order that the Indiana Board on Geographic Names be recognized as the official body to examine and consider the names of geographical features and places for the purpose of determining their most appropriate and correct names. The Board shall meet periodically as its work may require and shall report on the findings that result from its studies. Such findings shall constitute an official opinion of the State of Indiana.

Whenever the Indiana Board on Geographic Names shall have determined the name of any lake, stream, place or other geographic feature within the State, or the correct spelling of any such name, it shall be used in all maps, reports and other publications thereafter issued by the State or any of its political subdivisions, and shall be deemed the official name of such geographic feature. Anyone who wishes may apply to the Board, directly or through any of the co-operating agencies or organizations, requesting a finding for establishing new geographic names or for determining proper usage of existing names in Indiana.

The Board shall consist of representatives of the Division of Water Resources, Indiana Department of Conservation; Geological Survey, Indiana Department of Conservation; Indiana Flood Control and Water Resources Commission; Indiana Historical Society; Indiana State Highway Commission; School of Agriculture, Purdue University; and the School of Civil Engineering, Purdue University; and such others as may be designated hereafter. INTRODUCTION

The following register of Indiana place names contains 103 entries which were investigated and approved as findings by the Indiana Board on Geographic Names during the period July 1, 1963, through June 30, 1965. These names were submitted for investigation by various individuals, private organizations, and local, State, and Federal agencies. The approved names include names newly applied to previously unnamed features, new names replacing existing but unsatisfactory names, and names selected from among several conflicting names.

The approved names, which are underscored herein, define the proper form, spelling, and application of the names of the subject features. The findings in the principal body of this publication reflect the influence of historical background, cartographic usage and trends, local preference as far as can be ascertained, and legal decisions where applicable.

Each geographic feature is described as to actual or relative size or extent, by reference to civil subdivisions, and by congressional land survey boundaries. Geographic coordinates in latitude and longitude are given at the limits of linear features, such as streams, ditches, ridges, and roads; at the center of cemeteries, lakes, islands, and populated regions; and at points of geographic importance, such as the crest of a hill or the depression of a valley.

The Indiana Board on Geographic Names recommends use of the approved names listed in this publication. The board does not recommend the use of the variant names, spellings, or applications, which are recorded following the detailed description of the feature and the word "Not."

An index, which includes the approved names and the known variant names, follows the findings. The combined listing is presented in alphabetical order. Certain names that are derived from compound personal names are cross-indexed under the second part of the name. Names which are not approved are followed by the word "See," and reference is given to the approved name. Each approved name is followed by its finding number in parentheses. These numbers, assigned in the order in which the findings are adopted by the board, are useful in reference, particularly in the case of duplicate names.

The concluding section of this issue is a cumulative listing by county of all names considered by the Indiana Board on Geographic Names through June 30, 1965. These are cross-referenced in the same manner as the index. For further information on many of the names in this listing, concerning which decisions were made before July 1, 1963, reference must be made to the two previous lists of findings, published in May and December 1963.

Interested persons should also refer to the lists of decisions published periodically by the U. S. Board on Geographic Names.
